PROTRIALS STREAMLINES PROCESSES AND EFFICIENCIES WITH NEXONIA

Online timesheets and expense reports gives clinical researchers improved cost-savings

Toronto, ON – May 21, 2008 – Nexonia, Inc., today announced its online timesheet and expense report applications will be used by ProTrials Research, Inc., a specialized clinical contract research organization (CRO), to streamline its processes and improve efficiencies.

“Nexonia was an obvious choice due to their application flexibility and because they could quickly address areas of customization that we required. They also provided a seamless integration into our existing business processes and QuickBooks accounting system,” said Inger Arum, Founder and President of ProTrials. Nexonia’s timesheet and expense report applications provide significant functionality improvements over previous ProTrials internal systems. There is also improved cost savings through better expense management and analysis. Additionally, they provide ProTrials researchers the ability to complete timesheets and expense reports remotely from anywhere around the world, resulting in faster turnaround for ProTrials customers.

“Initial configuration takes only a few hours to set up and our strong management features allow companies to focus on their business instead of the tools that help run it,” said Neil Wainwright, CEO of Nexonia. “Among the features needed with these applications, our expense management system includes integrated receipt faxing and unlimited expense reports.” Nexonia’s applications are supported on all modern browsers for Windows, Mac or Linux.
